explained in the following paragraphs.

3. It may appear at first sight that we suggest a large number of important alterations in the Bill, but an examination of our Report will show that changes affecting principle are comparatively few. The Bill deals with a large number of points affecting the practical working of the Act, and many of the opinions received have contained valuable suggestions as to improved methods for giving effect to the principles approved or accepted in the Bill as introduced. The adoption of these has in some cases involved consequential amendments in other sections. The majority of the amendments which we propose are of this class. Of the more important and novel amendments which we propose we would call attention to the following:—

(1) The provisions regarding the application of the Act to municipal areas (clause 3).

(2) The revised definition of "village" [clauses 4 (2) and 27A].

(3) The period for which a commuted rent shall remain unaltered (clause 10).

(4) The provision regarding interest payable on arrears of rent before the institution of a suit (clauses 13 and 15).

(5) The provision regarding the finality of the decision of a Revenue-officer on matters affecting rents settled under section 105 (clause 21B).

(6) The provision enabling fair rents to be settled on the agreement of parties during the framing of a record-of-rights (clause 24).

(7) The provision requiring Revenue-officers to take independent evidence in certain cases when framing a record of proprietor's private land (clause 29A).

(8) The provisions regarding applications for a review of judgment or for setting aside ex parte decrees in rent suits (clause 32A).

(9) The alterations made in clauses 34, 39 and 43 regarding suits for the recovery of rent brought by co-sharer landlords.

The principal omissions which we propose to make in the Bill as introduced are as follows:—

(1) The provision in clause 10 enabling raiyats to sue for a reduction of rent on the ground that their rent is above the prevailing rate.

(2) The provision in clause 15 extending to non-occupancy raiyats the right to apply for commutation;

(3) The provision in clause 22 regarding the settlement of rents in private estates on the basis of a table of rates.

The remaining changes have been made for the purpose either of improving the drafting of the Bill, or of removing some comparatively unimportant defects and anomalies in the working of the Act, which have been pointed out by Associations and persons consulted in regard to the Bill.

4. Clause 2.—The object of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in inserting section 14, was to facilitate the registration of tenures by the Collector. Since all idea of such registration has been abandoned, we consider the retention of the section unnecessary.

5. Clause 3.—The provisions of the Act are intended to apply to agricultural areas, and are unsuitable to such Municipalities or portions thereof as are mainly urban in character. We think that the Local Government should have power to withdraw from the operation of the Act such municipal urban areas by notification, when it is satisfied by inquiry that such withdrawal is expedient. We consider that the operation of the Act should not ordinarily be withdrawn from any area until a record of the rights existing under the Act in such area has been made, but it appears to be unnecessary to provide for this in the Act. We recommend, therefore, the amendment we have suggested in this clause and a consequential amendment in clause 7.

6. Clause 4 (1).—The object of this clause as orginally drafted was to widen the definition of "rent" so as to make it clear that interest or damages granted in lieu of interest could be recoverable by the same procedure as rent. But strong objection has been raised to altering the definition, and it has been pointed out, we think rightly, that this would introduce complications in various sections of the Act, in which rent is referred to. We think that the object desired can be best attained by mentioning Chapter XIV of the Act in the definition of "rent" in sub-section (5) of section 3, and by adding a clause to section 161 of the Act explaining that, for the purposes of Chapter XIV regarding sales for arrears under a decree the term "arrears" includes interest or damages awarded in lieu of interest. This has been provided for by the new clause 34A, which we have inserted in the Bill. Clause 34B makes a verbal amendment in section 168 of the Act, so as to make the reference to arrears of rent uniform throughout Chapter XIV.

7. Clause 4 (2).—It has been brought to our notice that some practical inconvenience has been caused by the present definition of "village" in sub-section (10) of section 3 of the Act as the area included in a village map of the revenue-survey. In the Cadastral Surveys which are now being made in parts of the province in connection with the preparation of a record-of-rights, it is found in many cases, however, that, owing to the clearance of jungle and other causes, the existing boundary of a village does not agree with that ascertained in the revenue-survey, and rule 4 (c) of the Rules made by the Bengal Government prescribes that, in such cases, the existing boundary ascertained by the Revenue-officer is to be followed for the purpose of map and record. We propose to bring the law into conformity with this rule, for, we consider it advisable that where a Cadastral Survey has been made on a larger scale and with greater care and accuracy than the Revenue Survey, Government should have power to declare that the maps of the Cadastral Survey should supersede those of the Revenue Survey for the purposes of the Tenancy Act. We propose, therefore, that in the Tenancy Act, the definition of "village", which was adopted in the Land Registration (Amendment) Act of 1906, should be inserted. We consider, however, that the Revenue Survey map should be preserved as far as possible as the unit of survey and record in the course of the Cadastral Survey, and that no change should be made except with the sanction of the Board of Revenue. We have provided for this by the new clause 27A, which we propose to insert in the Bill.

8. Clauses 5 and 5A.—It is essential that the landlord should receive notice of transfers under sections 12, 13 and 15 at the earliest possible opportunity. The present practice is, that the landlord's fee is deposited with the Collector, by whom a notice is served on the landlord to come and claim the fee. This practice is not altogether in accordance with the terms of the law, which lays down that the Collector must cause the amount to be paid to the landlord. There is at present no provision for the costs of transmitting the fee. Time will, we think, be saved if the amount necessary for the transmission of the landlord's fee is paid by the transferee in the first instance, and sent with the fee to the Collector, who can thereupon send the fee by money order, or in such way as the Government by rule directs, to the landlord. We would protect the Collector from being held liable for paying the fee to the wrong person, by authorizing him in all cases to pay it to the landlord named in the notice.

The reluctance of landlords to accept fees is due as much to the tenant's habit of understating the rent as to his misdescribing the tenure. We have inserted the words "amount or" before the word "fixity" in the new sub-section (4) of section 12 and in clause (a) of the new section 17A.

9. Clause 5B.—This clause is consequential upon the changes made in clauses 5 and and 5A.

10. Clause 6.—We consider the period of six months for the reclamation of fees by a landlord too short, and have extended it to three years. The insertion of the words "accepted or" is rendered necessary by the use of the word "transmitted" in clauses 5 and 5A.

11. Clause 7.—The amendment we propose in this clause has been partly explained in the note on clause 3 above. As drafted in the Bill introduced into Council, the new sub-section (2) of section 19, while preserving previously acquired occupancy rights in land included within Calcutta, or in a municipal area excluded from the operation of the Act, would fail to secure therein the fulfilment of obligations attaching to such rights. A landlord would, thus, be powerless to restrain his tenant from converting his land into a bustee, or to eject him, if he used his lands in any of the ways mentioned in section 25. We now suggest a remedy for this.

12. Clause 8.—The object of the amendment proposed in this clause is to prevent the acquisition of occupancy holdings by landlords, but it is uncertain whether the result desired would be achieved by the substitution of the word "tenancy" for the words "occupancy rights," since the word "tenancy" is nowhere defined. The amendments which we propose to substitute will give effect to the intention of the framers of the Act, by providing that, where a sole landlord acquires an occupancy holding of his raiyat, the interests of such landlord and tenant merge into a landlord's interest; and that where one of several co-sharer landlords or joint tenure-holders acquires an occupancy right of a tenant of all the co-sharers or joint-tenure holders, such landlord cannot thereby acquire an occupancy right, or, by sub-letting, bar the acquisition of raiyati rights by the sub-lessee. At the same time, under the section as modified by us, the landlord will not be prevented from cultivating the land himself, though the holding will not become proprietor's private land.

We have inserted an Illustration to make the meaning of the section quite clear.

Our attention has been called to a Ruling of the High Court (4 Calcutta Law Journal, 209) to the effect that the word "acquire," in sub-section (3) of section 22, does not include "purchase." In order to prevent the acquisition of a right of occupancy by an ijaradar during the period of his lease through a purchase behind the back of the landlord, we have inserted the words "by purchase or otherwise" after the word "acquire."

13. Clause 9.—The number of non-occupancy raiyats is so small, that we do not think that a case for legislation extending to them the right to apply for commutation has been made out. We would confine the right to occupancy raiyats as at present. This being so, it is unnecessary to repeal section 40 and re-enact it as section 71A, as was done in the Bill as introduced.

We have contented ourselves with certain amendments in the section. Cases in which part of the rent is paid in cash should be provided for, and we are of opinion that the power to commute rents should be entrusted only to officers of some standing. At present, section 40 contains no provision requiring an officer commuting produce rents to have regard to improvements made by the landlord or tenant in respect of the holding under commutation. We consider this a defect, as the existence of such improvements is often an important factor in determining the amount of the cash rent to be fixed on commutation. We propose, therefore, to add a provision to sub-section (4) of section 40 allowing this to be done.

14. Clause 10.—Very general objection has been taken to the original clause 10 of the Bill, which allowed occupancy raiyats to sue for a reduction of their rents on the ground that their rate of rent is above the prevailing rate. It has been urged that such a provision would tend to deter landlords from letting out lands; that it is generally difficult to establish the existence of a prevailing rate, and that litigation under the clause would be difficult and vexatious. We consider that it is impossible to deny the force of these practical objections, and that they more than counterbalance any good which the clause might be expected to effect, as a means of reducing rents which were unduly high. In the case of rents improperly enhanced a remedy is supplied by section 112. We would therefore omit the clause from the Bill.

For this clause, we would propose to substitute another clause providing that commuted rents, like rents settled under Chapter X of the Act, shall not be liable to alteration for 15 years, save on certain specified grounds. The absence of such a provision seems to be a defect in the present law.

15. Clause 11.—The clause as originally drafted required the landlord or tenant to prove that a custom of measurement existed in the village in order to have the presumption applied that any entry of area had been made after measurement. It has been represented, we think rightly, that it would be very difficult to prove a custom of measurement; and also that what is really relevant is not a general custom, but a usage existing at the time the measurement on which the claim was based was made. We are also of opinion that the village is not a suitable unit for this matter. A village may contain several estates or permanent tenures, and the practice of the different landlords in regard to measurement may not be identical. There is no reason therefore why the same presumption should apply to all. We consider that the unit should be the estate, permanent tenure or part thereof, in which the holding concerned is situated. We are also of opinion that the presumption should only arise in respect of an area entered in a rent-roll, if it is supported by a corresponding entry in a counterfoil receipt, from which it may be inferred that the tenant knew of and accepted the description of the area of his holding adopted by the landlord. The changes, which we propose in the clause, give effect to these views.

16. Clause 12.—We have modified considerably the changes which it was proposed in the Bill to introduce into section 58 of the Act. The terms used in the sub-sections as drafted would practically render the failure to give a receipt a criminal offence, and this is generally objected to by the associations of landlords consulted. We have, therefore, removed the cause of objection by substituting a form of procedure closely akin to that prescribed by section 52 of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, for the imposition of penalties, and by the Public Demands RecoveryAct, 1895, for their recovery. The tenant must first prove that he received no receipt, and we do not consider it necessary to make any specific provision as to the burden of proof.

We have struck out of the clause the provisions as to compensation to tenants. We fear that the prospect of this compensation would be a temptation to bring false cases.

Further, we think that the provision requiring judicial officers to report cases of failure to grant receipts would be generally disregarded, while the report by Revenue-officers can best be prescribed by Executive order. We have, therefore, omitted the last portion of the proposed sub-section (4), and in the same sub-section have proposed a time-limit within which information may be laid or complaint made. We consider that the Board of Revenue should have power to revise any order under the section, and have made provision for this.

17. Clause 13.—The original clause 13 has been transferred as clause 68A to a more appropriate place in the Act. The present clause provides definitely for the levy of interest on arrears of rent before the institution of a suit. This point arose in the course of our discussion of clause 4, regarding the definition of "rent." We find that the framers of the Act of 1885 apparently intended to provide for the levy of interest before the institution of a suit; and that this was definitely allowed by the former Acts. From the wording of section 67, however, it might be inferred that interest could only be levied on arrears in cases where a suit had been instituted, and that any interest, taken before a suit was brought, might be treated as an illegal exaction under section 75. It has been represented that it is a common practice for landlords to take interest on arrears paid without the institution of a suit, and that it would be a hardship both to landlords and to tenants to hold that no interest could be charged unless a suit were instituted. We consider that on the whole it is advisable that the law should contain a definite provision in regard to this matter, more especially as such provision would merely be carrying out the intention of the framers of the original Act.

We also propose that the rate of interest should be altered from 12 per cent. to 12½ per cent. The adoption of the latter rate will greatly facilitate calculation, and this is the rate which is allowed by the Cess Act on arrears of cesses payable by tenants to landlords.

18. Clause 14.—A distraint is made for the realization of rent due for not more than a year, whereas appraisement is made in respect of the produce of a crop still in the ground. There is no reason why appraisement should not proceed, although the crop is under distraint. It will be sufficient to effect the end desired if the Collector is prevented from prohibiting the removal of a crop while under distraint.

It was ruled in I. L. R., 18 Calc., 518, that a person appointed by the Collector to make division of crops is not a "public servant" within the meaning of section 186 of the Penal Code. The person so appointed is generally an amin. Were the Ruling above quoted generally known, the section would be rendered unworkable, since the party opposed to the proceedings could safely obstruct the amin. We think it expedient to expressly declare that such a person is a "public servant."

19. Clause 15.—This clause merely makes an amendment in section 75 of the Act, consequential on the amendment proposed in section 67, regarding the levy of interest before the institution of a suit.

20. Clause 16.—Unless their agents are expressly authorized in that behalf, it would be unfair to the landlords and detrimental to their interest to enact that recognition of the division or sub-division of a holding, and the acceptance of a proportionate share of rent by their agent is binding upon the landlord. A wide door would be opened to fraud, and it would be easy for tenants to secure recognition by bribes to the agent. We have, therefore, provided that there must be an express authorization for the exercise of this power by the agent.

21. Clause 17.—We have raised the proportion of landlords which is to be requisite for a successful application to one-half. It is represented that it should not be in the power of a minority of the landlords to involve the majority in the considerable expenses which a survey and preparation of a record-of-rights entail. An intriguing landlord would often find it comparatively easy to get a following of a quarter of the landlords. The proportion has not been raised in the case of the tenants, as an application made by so large a proportion as one-quarter of them would be an indication of a feeling of dissatisfaction sufficiently widespread to call for a remedy.

Sub clause (3) of clause 17 of the Bill as introduced finds a more suitable place as a proviso to section 104. We have accordingly transferred it as sub-clause (2) of the new clause 20A.

22. Clause 18.—It is important that the record should show the name of each proprietor. It was probably contemplated that clause (d) of section 102 would be sufficient, but it does not cover the case of an owner who has no tenants.

It has been brought to our notice that doubts have been expressed regarding the authority of the Revenue-officer, making a record-of-rights under Chapter X of the Act, to include in such record entries relating to rights of way or other easements. Such matters, though not special conditions or incidents of a tenancy, may materially effect its value, and we consider that it is advisable that they should be included in the record-of-rights. The provision, we propose, has been adopted from section 77 of the Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, XVIII of 1881.

23. Clause 19.—The change we recommend in this clause does not involve any change of principle, but makes it clear that the new section will apply to disputes between all classes of persons, not only as to the use of water, but also as to the passage of water through lands not benefited by it.

24. Clause 20A.—The changes to be made by sub-clause (1) of this clause are consequential on the changes we propose in sub-clause (3) of clause 18.

Sub-clause (2) merely removes to a more appropriate place in the Act the provision regarding the settlement of rents in a Government estate, which it was originally proposed by clause 17 to insert in section 101.

25. Clause 21A.—This clause is consequential on the addition which we propose to make to section 102 by sub-clause (3) of clause 18. We think that, for the purposes of section 104H, the record of easements should be on the same footing as the record of special conditions and incidents of the tenancy, and that this is one of the grounds on which a suit should be allowed to be instituted in the Civil Court regarding an entry in a Settlement Rent-roll prepared under Part II of Chapter X.

26. Clause 21B.—In cases where rents are settled under Part II of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act in Government and temporarily-settled estates, section 104H allows any person aggrieved by an entry of a settled rent to file a suit in the Civil Court, on certain grounds, within six months from the date of the certificate of final publication or from the date of disposal of an appeal under section 104G. There is, however, no corresponding provision in regard to cases in which rents are settled under section 105 in private estates.

The result is that litigation in connection with the settlement of rents under section 105 in private estates is unduly prolonged, especially in cases falling under section 105 (g), where the Revenue-officer settles a rent for holdings for which no rent has hitherto been paid, but which the occupant is not entitled to hold without payment of rent. It frequently happens that long after such a rent has been settled, and when the landlord proceeds to realize it, the tenant files a suit in the Civil Court to have it declared that he is entitled to hold the land rent-free. The dispute is thus re-opened. The High Court have held that the Settlement Officer, under section 105, has only to settle a fair and equitable rent for the holding; and that if any dispute is raised in proceedings under section 105, as to the liability of the land to pay rent, proceedings under section 105 must be stayed, and the parties told to file a suit under section 106. This, however, only provides for a small minority of the cases. It usually happens that when the case under section 105 comes up for trial, the time allowed for filing suits under section 106 has expired. Or the tenant may refrain from raising the question in the proceedings under section 105, wait till the landlord attempts to realize the settled rent from him, and then raise the matter in the Civil Court.

We are agreed that it is necessary to take some action which will prevent proceedings from being protracted in this way. It has been suggested that this might be effected by enacting some provision similar to section 104H in Part II of Chapter X of the Act, which allows the entries of rent entered in a Settlement Rent-Roll to be contested in the Civil Courts on certain grounds within six months of the date of the Certificate of final publication. But the majority of us are of opinion that this would only afford a partial remedy, and there is no real analogy between a settlement of rents under Part II and under Part III of Chapter X. In settling rents under Part II in connection with a settlement of land-revenue, the Revenue-officer is subject entirely to the control of the Revenue authorities, and appeals against the rent settled lie exclusively to the Revenue authorities. There is therefore good reason for allowing certain matters to be referred to the Civil Courts as under section 104H. But in proceedings under Part III of Chapter X for the settlement of rents in private estates, the Revenue-officer acts judicially. Under section 107, he is required to adopt the procedure for the trial of suits; and under section 109A the appeal against his decision lies to the Special Judge and the High Court.

The majority of us are, therefore, of opinion that there is no reason why finality should not be given to the decisions of Revenue-officers under Part III of Chapter X, subject to appeal to the Special Judge and the High Court. It was the expressly declared intention of the framers of the Amendment Act of 1898 that the proceedings of the Revenue-officers and the Special Judge should be final. The present clause merely gives effect to that intention. The High Court have held that, under the law as it stands, finality attaches only to the rent settled under section 105, and not to incidental matters raised in the course of these rent-settlement proceedings. But in order that a fair rent may be settled, it is essential that such matters should be decided. The Revenue-officer would have the power to decide them finally, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, if they were raised in suits under section 106, and the majority of us can see no valid reason why the same Revenue-officer should not be given power to decide them finally, subject to appeal, if they are raised in proceedings under section 105. We consider that any other course would lead to considerable confusion and practical inconvenience, as it would enable the same matters to be raised simultaneously in the subordinate Civil Courts and before the Special Judge and the High Court. For these reasons, the majority of us are in favour of the proposed clause 21B.

27. Clause 22.—Owing to the absence of any previous survey and settlement in the permanently-settled portions of this Province, we doubt very much whether it would be practicable to prepare a table of rates which would form a fair basis for a settlement of fair rents in such areas. We have, therefore, excised clause 22 as it stood in the Bill as introduced, and substituted therefor a new clause 22, which so amends sub-section (g) of section 107 of the Act as to provide for the entry on the record of all rents commuted by Settlement Officers under section 40. Such a note is, in our opinion, necessary.

28. Clause 22A.—It has been pointed out to us that, under the law as it stands, the Revenue-officer has no power to correct errors in the settlement record after final publication, unless they are made the subject of a dispute under section 106. In the millions of entries which find place in a settlement record, some clerical errors are bound to creep in, and it seems desirable to have a cheap and ready means of correcting them. We propose, therefore, that any Revenue-officer specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government should be able to correct bond-fide mistakes, after giving due notice to all the parties concerned.

29. Clause 22B.—An amendment of section 109 has been rendered necessary owing to the new section 105A, which it is proposed, by clause 21B, to insert in the Bill. The words "suit" and "application" in section 109 do not cover all questions which may arise in the course of proceedings for the settlement of rents.

30. Clause 23.—The addition to this clause allows an appeal to the Special Judge against an order of a Revenue-officer correcting an error in the settlement record under section 108A, which we propose by clause 22A to insert in the Act. It is not likely that the right of appeal will often be exercised in such cases, but it seems advisable to provide some safeguard against a possible improper use of his powers by the Revenue officer.

31. Clauses 24 and 30.—We have made considerable modifications in these clauses, mainly in consequence of the criticisms which have been directed against the words "unfair and inequitable," which were used in the clause as originally drafted. It has been represented, we think rightly, that such words are too vague to afford any proper guidance to the Courts and Revenue-officers dealing with agreements or compromises. We consider that it will be best to provide specifically that no effect shall be given to any provisions, embodied in a compromise or agreement filed before a Court or Revenue-officer, which, if embodied in a contract between landlord and tenant, could not be enforced under the Act. We further consider it desirable to provide for the case of agreements or compromises, purporting to be made in settlement of a dispute, or affecting the rights of third parties.

32. Clause 24 (section 109 E).—While the majority of us consider it essential that the Revenue-officer should not be compelled to give effect to provisions in an agreement or compromise, which could not be enforced if embodied in a contract, we consider that some discretion should be allowed in dealing with rents, which, though technically illegal, are such as might be settled as fair and equitable. We understand that at present Officers of the Settlement Department are allowed, with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, to disregard technical illegalities in respect of rents, which though they contravene the provisions of section 29, are fair and equitable and are agreed to by the landlord and tenant. It is clearly inadvisable that in such cases, the parties should be forced into litigation regarding rents, which, though technically illegal, would be settled as fair and equitable by any Court, and we consider it desirable to regularize the present practice. We therefore propose that where, in the course of the framing of the record, the parties agree upon a rent, a Revenue-officer specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may, if he finds such rent to be fair and equitable, settle it as such, even though it may not be the rent legally payable. We provide for an appeal to the Special Judge on the ground that the parties did not agree to such a rent, and we also propose to give the Board of Revenue power to revise any rent settled under the section within one year of the date of the order settling the rent. We believe that the section as drafted will be useful as saving the parties from unnecessary litigation in regard to rents, by giving the Revenue-officer power, under certain safeguards, to settle a rent, to which the only objection which can be taken, is that, if fixed by a contract, it could not legally be recovered. A Revenue-officer in framing the record usually has opportunities of judging of the fairness and equity of the rents claimed and admitted, and it is not necessary in all cases to confine him to the record of the rent legally payable.

33. Clause 24A.—We have inserted this clause in order to prevent an inquiry by a Civil Court into questions of rent and status simultaneously with the preparation of a record-of-rights by a Revenue-officer. It seems to us to be inadvisable that two authorities should be engaged in the same inquiry at the same time.

34. Clause 25.—Though it is probable that the Local Government would be justified in taking action under section 112, as it now stands, in cases where a landlord is demanding rents which have been illegally enhanced above those entered as payable in a record-of-rights, we think it advisable to remove all doubt on the point. We consider that the change in the clause as now re drafted is a more convenient way of emphasizing the fact. We consider that any revision of the record-of-rights by the Board of Revenue should be subject to confirmation by the Governor General in Council, and have added sub-clause (3) accordingly.

35. Clause 26 of the Bill as introduced.—No changes in sub-section (1) of section 113 will be necessary, as clause 10 of the Bill as introduced has been omitted.

36. Clause 27.—The only change we have made in this clause is intended to legalize the present practice of the Government of recovering costs by instalments.

37. Clause 27A.—The object of this clause has already been explained in our notes on clause 4 of the Bill.

38. Clause 29.—In view of the wording of section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, and the definition contained in section 18 of the Land Acquisition (Mines) Act, 1885, we have substituted "Local Authority" for the expression "Local Body;" and we have substituted the word "any" for "such", because it may happen that land acquired by one local authority may be subsequently transferred to another, for example, land acquired for a Municipality may be made over to a District Board.

39. Clause 29A.—This clause in the main re-asserts the principle already accepted in clause 24 that, agreements or compromises made before a Revenue-officer should not be held to affect the rights of third parties. But in regard to the record of proprietor's private land, the majority of us consider it necessary to go further and to provide that the Revenue-officer shall not be bound to record land as proprietor's private land, because it has been declared to be so in a decree which has been obtained ex-parte or by collusion or fraud. The question whether land is proprietor's private land affects not merely the parties to a particular suit, viz., the landlord and the tenant for the time being, but also all future occupants of the land, and it is necessary to safeguard their interests as far as possible. It would be easy for a landlord to obtain an ex-parte or collusive decree, declaring certain land to be proprietor's private land, by suing a non-existent or fictitious defendant who had no concern with the land. We consider, therefore, that in framing a record-of-rights regarding such land, the Revenue-officer should not be bound by decrees of the nature referred to, but should be required to satisfy himself by independent evidence as to the real nature of the land.

40. Clause 30.—The amendments proposed in section 147A have been explained in our note on clause 24.

As regards section 147B, we have substituted the words "subject matter" for the word "land," as we consider that the Court should have regard to entries in the record-of-rights which may be produced before it, and which are relevant to any matter in dispute between the landlord and tenant.

41. Clause 31.—We are of opinion that to make clause (bb) really effective, it is necessary to require the Court to record reasons when it dispenses with a statement in the plaint. Unless this is done, some landlords will file plaints not containing the required particulars, and to save themselves trouble, Munsiffs will continue to decree according to the claims without reference to the record-of-rights. If the Munsiff is required to record his reasons for dispensing with the statement of the rental according to the record, he will insist on such particulars being furnished wherever possible.

We have re-drafted the proviso to clause (bb) as the wording is ambiguous. We consider that in addition to a statement of the rental of a tenancy, the plaint should show the survey-plot numbers comprised in the holding. The Court should not be allowed to have any excuse for not referring to the entries in the record-of-right. Where a plaintiff, for a good and sufficient reason, fails to produce a statement of the rental or a list of survey-plot numbers the Court should be obliged to call for a copy of the record from the Collector. We think that delay will be prevented and corruption of the amla checked, if in all cases the record-of-rights is supplied by the Collector direct to the Court. No fees should be charged in any case for the copies.

New clause (bbb).—We have thought it necessary to insert this clause in the Bill to make it quite clear that a statement of rental and of survey plots in the plaint will be necessary, in cases where, since the record was finally published, a holding has been divided during partition proceedings, or amalgamated with another holding, or in other ways treated so as to obscure its identity.

Sub-clause (2).—We think that the provisions of the clause should be extended to maps, and that original copies and extracts should not acquire the evidential value proposed, unless the originals have been not only produced but also admitted in evidence.

42. Clause 31 A.—It has been represented that as a matter of fact a tenant pleading that the rent claimed is due to a third person, or that it is in excess of the amount due, has rarely if ever been called upon to deposit the amount claimed or admitted, because the Courts have given too free an interpretation to the exception. The omission of the words "except for special reasons to be recorded in writing," by making a deposit necessary in every case in which the defendant admits money to be due, will check the setting up of false pleas.

43. Clause 32.—It was not intended by the framers of the Bill that the new sub-section (2) of section 153 should have the effect of excluding the provisions of section 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The sub-section was meant to apply to execution proceedings only in suits in which an appeal is barred under section 153. We have substituted an Explanation to section 153 for the proposed sub-section (2) which, while carrying out the intention, cannot be construed to bar the provisions of section 244 of the Civil Procedure Code.

44. Clause 32A.—The conditions which apply under sections 149 and 150 to a plea by a tenant to the effect that the rent claimed is due to a third person or is in excess of the amount really due, should also attach to an application for the setting aside of an ex-parte decree under section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for such applications are very often made with the sole object of delaying and obstructing the recovery of rent. A deposit of the decretal amount is required in the case of such an application under section 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887. We have inserted the new section 153A with the object of preventing vexatious applications for the purpose of delay, not only under section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, but also under section 623 of the same Code. We think that the tenant should be bound to deposit either the amount, if any, which he admits to be due, or such amount as the Court directs. The Court should be empowered to regulate the amount of the deposit after consideration of the statement of injury filed with the application. In all cases the Court should record its reasons for the order it passes, whether it requires or excuses a deposit.

45. Clause 32B.—An explanation of this clause has been given in the note on clause 24A, above.

46. Clause 33.—The opinions received from the various Associations consulted evince some degree of opposition to this clause. The landlords, while ready to welcome any change in the procedure which will expedite the recovery of rent, do not approve of the safeguards and restrictions with which it is now proposed to surround the extension of the Certificate Procedure for this purpose. Some of them appear to fear that the provisions of the new section 158A will give too much power to the local officers. We understand, however, that the clause is intended to be purely an experimental measure, its main object being to introduce into the Rent Law of Bengal a principle which has not existed there before. It is necessary to be cautious in its application, and to make sure that it does not prove an instrument of oppression of the tenants. We hope that the provision may prove a great inducement to landlords to manage their estates properly, and to maintain their rent accounts in a correct and intelligible manner. It is probable that, after some experience has been gained of the working of the proposed provisions, it will be possible to introduce a measure more general in scope and more detailed in character. On this assumption, we have contented ourselves with modifying the clause as drafted, so as to provide a tentative but workable system.

Sub-section (1).—The word "maintain" should be substituted for the words "periodically revised." At present no scheme for periodical revision has been worked out, and it is not advisable to make any entry in the sub-section which might bind the Government to a particular scheme. We have added the words "or may accrue," since the application will be for the recovery of future as well as of past arrears.

Sub-section (2).—The provision that no reasons need be given by the Local Government for any conditions it imposes, or for its refusal or with drawal of the right, has been objected to. At the present stage, it would, in our opinion, be inadvisable to leave any chance of the exercise of its discretion by the Local Government being questioned. We understand that the sole ground for consideration by the Local Government will be the landlord's conduct as a landlord.

New sub-sections (3) and (4).—The clause as it stands in the Bill as introduced makes no provision for the making of a requisition for issue of a certificate by the landlord, nor does it prescribe the court-fee payable. We have supplied the defect, following section 9(2) of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895.

It may be assumed that care will be taken in selecting the officers who are to exercise the powers under the section, but we consider it best to assure this by specifically declaring that the Certificate Officer is to be specially appointed by the Government. Ordinarily, we think such powers should be conferred on the officer who is entrusted with the maintenance of the record.

New sub-section (5).—In order to make the privilege of being able to recover rent by the certificate procedure of real value, the certificate should have the effect of a decree in a rent-suit. We have amended the sub-section accordingly.

New sub-section (6).—It is not necessary to make the provisions of sections 19, 20 and 21 of the Public Demands Recovery Act applicable, but sections 24, 27 and 28 contain provisions which seem to be required.

New sub-sections (7) and (8).—We have made amendments, in order to prevent any conflict of jurisdiction between the Civil Courts and the Revenue-officer in areas where the provisions of this section are in force.

New sub-section (9).—We propose to limit the application of the clause to a sole landlord, or to such co-sharer landlords as collect their shares of the rent separately. It would obviously be impossible in the case of joint landlords to let one of several collect by certificate, while the rest have recourse to the Civil Court. As the certificate will have the force of a decree in a suit for arrears of rent, it is necessary that where one of several co-sharer landlords who collect their shares separately applies for the issue of a certificate against a tenant of all the co-sharers, the remaining co-sharers should have notice of the fact.

47. Clause 34.—The reasons for the insertion of this clause in the Bill as introduced were explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons in the notes on clauses 34 and 39 of the Bill. At the time when the Bill was published in the Gazette a reference had been made to a Full Bench of the High Court, in which the correctness of the decision in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghose versus Paban Chandra Ghose (8 C. W. N. 472) was called in question. In December last, the Full Bench decided that the question propounded did not properly arise in the case in which it was referred, and declined to give any decision on the point. The Hon'ble the Chief Justice observed that as there appeared to be a considerable conflict of judicial opinion on the question, it would be well if the Legislature settled it. Clause 34, therefore, seems to us to be fully justified. We have inserted a new sub-section in the proposed section 158B, as it has been represented to us that the section would not benefit a large class of co-sharer landlords who collect their shares of the rent separately and are not in a position to know the amounts of rent due from the tenants to their co-sharers, and whether they have been paid or not. Such co-sharer landlords will have no remedy unless they are allowed to sue for the rent due to them only, or to the entire body of co-sharers, according to the extent of the information available. The new sub-section will allow a co-sharer to sue for his share only where his co-sharers or the tenant have neglected to supply him with information. We have provided in the new sub-section (3)—the old sub-section (2)—for early notice to the remaining co-sharers of the application for the execution of a decree.

48. Clauses 34A and 34B.—An explanation of the insertion of these clauses has been given in the note on clause 4 (1) above.

49. Clause 35.—The alteration we have made in this clause is consequential upon the insertion of the new sub-section (2) in the proposed section 158B, and seems also to us to be an improvement in drafting.

50. Clause 38.—The Act contains no definition of the expression "horticultural land." We have supplied one in this clause which we consider sufficiently wide. Sub-clause (1) of the clause in the Bill as introduced is, owing to the change explained in the note on clause 9, now unnecessary.

51. Clause 38A.—It was intended to insert the new provision as to damages for denial of landlord's title, as section 68A, in Chapter VIII of the Act, which contains general provisions as to rent. It seems to us, however, that the section will find a more appropriate place in Chapter XVII, as section 186A, under the heading "Penalties." We have, therefore, transferred it to its present position in the Bill. The only change we have made in the drafting of the section explains itself.

52. Clause 39.—We have recast this clause in order more fully to counteract the Ruling in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghose versus Paban Chandra Ghose referred to in the note on clause 34. We have made the provisions of sections 148 to 153 applicable to all suits between landlord and tenant as such instituted by a sole landlord, the entire body of landlords or one or more co-sharer landlords, and have omitted mention of sections 168, 169, 184 and 185, and we have applied the various sections of Chapter XIV of the Act to proceedings in execution of rent decrees in suits framed under section 158B. This was apparently the intention of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, but the intention was frustrated by the ratio decidendi in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghose versus Paban Chandra Ghose.

53. Clause 41.—The amendment which this clause proposes to make in section 191 opens up difficult questions of merger in connection with the purchase or acquisition of permanently-settled estates by the Government. It is doubtful whether the clause would effect the object in view. We think therefore that it should be omitted.

54. Clause 43, sub-clauses (2) (a) and (4).—The amendments here proposed will restore to suits for arrears of rent and to executions of rent decrees the rules of limitation originally intended by the framers of the Act to apply to such rent and execution proceedings, as to the applicability of which as explained in the note on clause 39 in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and in the note on clause 34 above there may be some doubt.

Sub-clause (2) (b).—The present state of affairs regarding limitation for the bringing of suits for recovery of rent is anomalous. By this amendment, which has been made on the suggestion of the High Court, we have attempted to remove the anomaly. The change will affect those portions of the Province only where the Amli or Fasli year prevails. There will result a slight extension in favour of the landlords of the period of limitation, and there can be no reasonable objection from the tenants' point of view. The present custom fulfils no particular object.

55. We recommend that the Bill be passed as now amended.

NOTE OF DISSENT.

We beg respectfully to record our dissent from the opinion expressed by our honourable colleagues with regard to the provisions contained in clauses 33 and 36 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee. Clause 33 marks a considerable departure from the procedure now in force for the recovery of rent, and embodying as it does the principle that in cases of selected landlords a certificate should issue in the first instance without any evidence being recorded at all, cannot fail to have consequences of a far-reaching character. Even from the zamindar's point of view it is necessary to examine whether the certificate procedure as adopted by the Bill will really succeed in shortening the procedure for collecting rents to the desired extent. With regard to this point it may be observed that, apart from the questions that are bound to arise in connection with sales by a co-sharer landlord who has obtained the privilege to the exclusion of his partners, and generally in connection with the special provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act where they do not fit into the provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act, the latter, so far as they have been adopted by the proposed section 158A, do not provide a simple means for the recovery of rent. By section 12 of the Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895, B.C.) the judgment debtor who, after he has been served with a notice under section 10, denies his liability to pay the whole or any part of the amount for which such a certificate has been made and filed against him, may within thirty days from service of such notice or, when no such notice has been duly served, within thirty days from the execution of any process for enforcing such certificate, file a petition of objection denying his liability, and under section 13 of the said Act the Certificate officer is bound to fix a day for hearing any such petition so filed and to decide, after a proper hearing in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure, whether the petitioner is liable for the whole or any part of the amount entered in the certificate, and may set aside or modify or vary the certificate accordingly. The Certificate officer must, further, under the proviso to the said section, refer the petition to the District Collector if there is a bo d fide claim of right, and the latter, if satisfied that there is such a claim, has to make an order cancelling the certificate. Under section 15 of the said Act, the judgment-debtor may at any time within six months from the service upon him of notice under section 10, or, if he files a petition of objection under section 12, from the date of the determination hereof, or if he appeals under section 32, from the date of the decision of such appeal, bring a suit in the Civil Court to have the said certificate cancelled or modified.

It is thus clear that where objections really exist the procedure laid down in the Public Demands Recovery Act is more complex than that laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure so far as it has been adopted by the present Bengal Tenancy Act. A judgment-debtor where he has a just grievance will, if he has the means, seldom fail to seek redress after the making of the certificate either by putting in an objection and appeal before the Revenue authorities, or, failing these, by a regular suit in the Civil Court; and such a suit may sometimes be of a protracted character. The principal advantage of the certificate procedure is to be looked for in those cases only where the alleged claim is admittedly correct. But in such cases the ordinary procedure for the recovery of rent in the Civil Court is quick enough. Under the Circulars of the High Court two weeks' notice on the defendant is allowed in a rent suit to enable the defendant to appear and answer the claim, whereas in the certificate procedure the Revenue officer has generally to wait for one month before putting the certificate into execution. To this the time that must elapse between the submission of the requisition and the necessary enquiry under the rules and the subsequent making and filing of the certificate must be added. On the other hand it must be remembered that in non-contentious rent suits in a Civil Court, a single patwari or a gomastha may prove dozens of cases in one day, and, generally speaking, there is no unnecessary delay in the disposal of such cases.

Thus while the advantage that a landlord may expect in a certificate procedure is practically illusory: the fact that a decree under this procedure can be obtained by him without any evidence being required to be adduced in support of the claim cannot fail to produce a demoralising effect on his subordinate amla, and it may reasonably be apprehended that in course of time it will give rise to a tendency to blackmailing in the subordinate staff of a zamindar's establishment, even where no such tendency existed before. An ordinary zamindari sharista, however well regulated it may be in its own way, is not worked by such hard-and-fast rules as to procedure and inspection as are in force in a Government office or in an office under the Court of Wards, nor can a zamindar, however well intentioned he may be, be expected to personally examine and control the details of management. It is a notorious fact that ordinarily speaking the subordinate staff of a zamindari establishment is very ill-paid, the pay of a village patwari in some of the Behar districts being sometimes so low as Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 per month. The consequence is they have to live very often upon their perquisites.

In the case of large landlords, the certificate proceeding if allowed may therefore operate as a great hardship upon the tenants.

The system of accounts kept in a zamindari sharista is not always very simple, and a tenant who pays his rent is very often in a dilemma as to how much of the payment made by him should go to back rents, interest, cesses and other demands, and how much to actual rent for the current year. The making of a certificate with the immediate effect, by its own operation, that all the immoveable properties of a raiyat are placed under attachment will more often than not induce him to submit to unjust demands rather than that he should undertake the troubles of a long journey and incur the expenses incidental to his objections being heard and decided by the Certificate officer, such expenses being often much more than what he could expect to get back by going to the collectorate and thereafter to the Civil Court. But this is not all. Under section 11 of the Public Demands Recovery Act the Certificate officer can, upon an ex parte statement of the zamindari amla based merely upon belief, attach the whole or any part of the moveable property of a raiyat even before the judgment-debtor has notice of the certificate. It is needless to say that where such an attachment takes place the troubles of a raiyat can be more easily imagined than described, for in the majority of instances he never gets back all that once passes out of his possession. And if he is unable to pay up the amount of the certificate and his moveables are sold in consequence, it is needless to say he seldom, if ever, succeeds in obtaining their full value. It must also be remembered that generally speaking in cases of such attachment, property worth a great deal more than the amount entered in the certificate is seized, and during all this time, all the immoveable property of the raiyat remains under attachment by operation of law. It will be for the legislature to consider whether such a procedure rendered available to an ordinary zamindari amla cannot at any moment be turned into an engine of oppression.

If the general effect of the proposed legislation, irrespective of the principle of selection that the Government proposes to adopt, is such as has been pointed out above, the invidious distinction that the principle of selection will entail, will in our opinion be a source of weakness rather than of strength to the Government. If the proposed section 158A is to have anything like a wide application, the disadvantages of the certificate procedure from the point of view of impartial administration of justice will be very great indeed; and if it is to have a limited application only, the privilege being confined to a favoured few, the irritation that it will produce among those from whom the privilege may be withheld is likely to be very great. Unless a zamindar shall have agreed to become practically a ward of Court and to allow Government to overhaul his accounts at regular and short intervals it will not be possible for Government to admit him to the privilege with any sense of security. But at the same time it is not difficult to foresee that by far the largest majority of zamindars will keep themselves aloof from such an inquisitional process. Besides, the power now reserved to Government of conferring and withdrawing the privilege at its pleasure without assigning any reason is likely to lead to abuse, as the Government will in most cases have to be guided by its local officers and the parties concerned will have no hearing.

With regard to clause 36 of the Bill, we venture to think that it would have been better not only to drop it altogether but to amend section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and bring it into line with section 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure if it was thought that this section has no application to the Bengal Tenancy Act. It is perfectly immaterial to a landlord whether he receives his decretal dues from the recorded tenant, his mortgagee, the tenant in actual possession of the tenure or holding though not recorded, or any other person interested in saving it, so long as the entire amount due to the zamindar together with the statutory penalty is paid after a sale takes place. No doubt any one of these persons may pay the decretal amount into Court under section 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and prevent the sale. But it must be remembered that persons interested in the tenure or holding other than the recorded tenant need not be made a party to the suit under the Bengal Tenancy Act, and therefore they have very often no notice of the sale until it has actually taken place. It is sometimes urged that the pressure of the Government demand upon a landlord is great, and therefore there is justification for a provision like the one contemplated by clause 36, and that complications may arise after the sale if persons other than the judgment-debtor are allowed to make the deposit. But to our mind these questions do no arise in view of the fact that as a matter of fact payment can be made by the judgment-debtor after the sale, and if there be any complications at all they can arise in either case, whether persons other than the judgment-debtor are allowed to pay or not. We venture to think that any possible difficulty of a zamindar arising upon a deposit made under section 174, Bengal Tenancy Act, or 310A, Civil Procedure Code, is confined mainly, if not entirely, to the questions (1) whether the amount in question has been deposited within the statutory limit of time, and (2) whether the entire amount has been paid or not. It is obvious these questions are independent of the person who makes the payment. To avoid any possible inference to the effect that by accepting payment from a person not recorded as a tenant the zamindar recognises him as a tenant, a provision on the lines laid down in clause 6 of the Bill could have been easily made, if necessary. But we venture to think no such fear need be entertained; for section 170 of the present Act, as it has been pointed out already, enables persons other than recorded tenants to deposit the amount. This clause therefore does not serve any useful purpose so far as we can see, while it makes the position of unrecorded tenants and encumbrancers, as also of under-tenants in certain cases, unnecessarily difficult.

Clause 29A.—I think it would be a mistake to invest a Revenue officer with authority to enquire and decide whether a decree of a Civil Court in a contested suit was obtained by collusion or fraud which is practically the effect of clause 29A: it is objectionable on principle and of very doubtful value in practice. The clause fixes no time within which a Civil Court decree may be challenged before a Revenue officer, and the provision will lead to settled questions being re-opened after lapse of considerable time and to unnecessary litigation.
